A Timeless Location

A remarkable and enchanting place, Madison Beach Hotel is the most historic, continuously-run establishment on the shoreline. In fact, lodging has existed on this very spot since the early 1800's. Built as a boarding house for the shipbuilders of the Hoyt Shipyard on West Wharf, the location was called The Flower House after original owner Artemus Flower. In the early 1800's, the rooming house catered to workers at Hoyt's Shipyard—one of two shipyards in Madison. The hotel played a significant role in the town's maritime history. Later that century, wooden sailing ships grew obsolete as rail service began transporting goods, and passenger trains began carrying city dwellers to newly formed beach communities like Madison. Madison Beach Hotel and the Town of Madison quickly became known as "the place to summer" on the Connecticut shoreline.

Here on Long Island Sound...

Whether you plan on sauntering barefoot across our private beach, or exchanging vows on our manicured lawn, Madison Beach Hotel offers unparalleled natural beauty. Your guests will enjoy spectacular ocean views from your private second-floor wrap-around cocktail deck and from every gold chiavari seat in the waterfront ballroom. Ten sets of French doors invite the ocean breeze in and provides the perfect vantage point for viewing the sunset over Long Island Sound. The hotel offers 33 luxuriously appointed guest rooms, 32 of which boast sweeping water views with furnished balconies to take in the relaxing sounds of softly breaking waves. Madison Beach Hotel features an award-winning restaurant, The Wharf, providing incredible indoor and al fresco seating, and seasonal New England-inspired cuisine with a modern twist. The Sounds of the Sea Spa is intimate and innovative, whether you're revitalizing before the big day, or enjoying a couple's massage, the day following your wedding.

One visit and Madison Beach Hotel, Curio Collection by Hilton, will become your favorite destination for future escapes, long after you've exchanged your vows.
